RECENT WORK

Frisco Peninsula

DHM provided master planning, design, and construction documents for the recreation facilities and infrastructure master plan of the Town of Frisco's Peninsula Recreation Area. The first phase includes a day lodge, BMX/mountain bike park, tubing hill, parking and associated roads and infrastructure. DHM Design has partnered with the Town of Frisco to ensure that architecture, landscape architecture, and engineering work seamlessly together to establish a connection between the characteristics of the site, proposed structures, program objectives, and their successful long-term maintenance.

Keystone PUD

As the original base area at Keystone Ski Resort, Mountain House has seen very little development through recent years. DHM Design has enjoyed assisting Vail Resorts to update the conceptual development plan for Mountain House, working closely with the developer, governmental agencies and consultant team to coordinate the entire PUD amendment process. Our evocative graphics detail all phases of the proposed improvements, which include an analysis of incremental land use, village and base area development, day skier parking, employee housing, transportation options, trails and wetland mitigation.

Copper PUD

DHM Design assisted with the update of the resort master plan in preparation for a major PUD amendment. Various operational aspects of the resort were studied and illustrated in order to create consensus on the proposed master plan. In addition, opportunities for real estate development were studied and alternative product types were defined. Density studies for each potential development site were included in the master plan report, and PUD Amendment, which has been approved by Summit County. DHM continues to work with Copper Mountain on the implementation of the development defined in the Master Plan and PUD.

Punta Chivato

DHM is the lead planner for a 2,200 acre resort in the heart of the Baja Peninsula on the Sea of Cortez. The vision for Punta Chivato is a six star eco-lux resort with pockets of development surrounded by the native serenity of Baja's landscape. The final project will include a 36-hole golf course and private clubhouse, 1300 casitas and villas, 900 hotel rooms, a beach clubhouse, and 100,000 square feet of commercial development. DHM is also working on plans to enlarge an existing runway into an international airport, and proposing improvements to a nearby town for future employees of the resort.

With over thirty years of experience in resort planning and design, land use planning, and urban design, Gregg has managed a wide range of resort, residential development, commercial, parks and open space projects. Prior to joining DHM Design, he worked for several years in the public sector, gaining a broad-based knowledge of parks design, recreation planning, streetscape design, and governmental methodologies. Gregg has placed an emphasis on designing places for people to live, work, and play even on steep or difficult sites with challenging environmental conditions.
