NOTABLE WORK

Center for Living Peace, UC Irvine | Orange, CA

DHM Design provided landscape architecture services and created conceptual graphics for a new facility for the Center for Living Peace on the UC Irvine Campus. The Center for Living Peace is a non-profit with a mission is to inspire inner peace and its expression in the world. Their work seeks to support and develop global citizens through inner work and development, effective communication and bridge building, safeguarding the environment, and expression through arts and culture. This new facility will enable their courses to be integrated into the core curriculum of the University.

Carbondale Wayfinding | Carbondale, CO

DHM Design developed new wayfinding signage for the Town of Carbondale in conjunction with the redevelopment of the HWY 133 corridor that runs along the western edge of Town. The signage meets strict CDOT ROW guidelines but more importantly the signs are meant to catch the attention of visitors and impel them to explore the town. Carbondale is currently establishing a Creative Arts District and the wayfinding design incorporates future embellishments that will augment and support that effort.

Eagle Ranch Wayfinding | Eagle, CO

DHM conducted an analysis of existing signage for Eagle Ranch, a lifestyle resort community in Colorado. In addition to having a village center that offers dining, shopping, and events, the community has a variety of recreation assets including a golf course, mountain bike and hiking trails, and an extensive network of pedestrian trails throughout. DHM developed a wayfinding master plan that improves navigation and draw to the village center and that promotes and clarifies the community's recreational trails. Design development of a cohesive family of signage is underway and will include a new entry monument, street signs, trails, and park signage.
